

Atlanta Restaurant News: June 8-14

New Italian “food and drink” restaurant

Oysters at Cibo e Beve

Cibo e Beve. That's the name of a new modern Italian spot opening soon in Sandy Springs. Sounds romantic, and brings to mind lovely Italian phrases we've come to know, such as "la dolce vita" or "mi amore." The difference is, those words actually provide a taste of place, with meanings "the sweet life" and "my love." Cibo e Beve, on the other hand, is Italian for "food and drink." How descriptive!

So we know the folks behind Cibo, who are also known for Food 101 and Meehan's Public House, aren't great with names. What they can do, however, is cook. Using seasonal, locally grown and harvested ingredients, as well as specialty items imported from Italy's finest purveyors, Chef Linda Harrell will be making pizzas, pastas, meat and fish entrees and desserts-almost always from scratch-at Cibo e Beve. We can just taste the veal chop Milanese now.

Cibo e Beve is slated to open this month at 4969 Roswell Road in Sandy Springs. For more information, visit www.ciboatlanta.com.